COVID-19: US donates 100 'cutting-edge' ventilators to Pakistan

The United States has donated 100 advanced ventilators to Pakistan to shore up the country's resources in the fight against the coronavirus pandemic.

President Donald Trump, after a telephonic discussion with Prime Minister Imran Khan in April, had said that Pakistan has asked for ventilators for the victims of coronavirus and Washington would help Islamabad.

According to a press release issued by the US embassy, the ventilators arrived in Karachi on July 2 and will be deployed to hospitals across Pakistan.

"This donation delivers on President Donald Trump's generous offer of these critically needed supplies and supports Pakistan's urgent response to the pandemic," read the statement.

KARACHI: As Pakistan's healthcare system tries to keep up with the continuous influx of novel coronavirus patients, the United States will be donating 200 state-of-the-art ventilators to assist the country in overcoming the pandemic. The US Agency of International Development (USAID) on Friday handed over the first tranche of 100 Vyair LTV 1200 ventilators to country while announcing a second tranche of as many lifesaving systems will follow shortly.

Acting US Consul General Jack Hillmeyer handed over the ventilators to the acting chairperson of the National Disaster Management Authority (NDMA)

Brig Waseemuddin and provincial representatives in a ceremony held at the Karachi Airport, officials said. Dr Tanweer Hussain who heads USAID Global Health Supply Chain in Sindh and Balochistan also attended the event.

"These new ventilators will enable Pakistan to more effectively treat patients suffering from COVID-19 in hospitals across the country," Hillmeyer said while speaking at the ceremony. "This donation delivers on President Donald Trump's generous offer of these critically needed supplies and supports Pakistan's urgent response to the pandemic," added a statement issued by the US embassy later in the day.

According the statement, the ventilators are valued at about $3 million and reflect the 'latest in cutting-edge medical design and technology'. "The ventilators are compact, easily deployable, and will enable Pakistan to more effectively treat patients suffering from COVID-19," it added.

COVID-19: US donates 100 ventilators worth $3 million to Pakistan

By: PTI | Published: July 3, 2020 3:26 PM

The United States has donated 100 ventilators worth USD 3 million to Pakistan to support its fight against COVID-19. The US embassy here in a statement on Friday said the Trump administration through the US Agency for International Development (USAID) donated a shipment of 100 brand-new, state-of-the-art ventilators to Pakistan.

The ventilators arrived in Karachi on July 2 and will be sent to hospitals across Pakistan. This donation delivers on President Donald Trump's generous offer of these critically needed supplies and supports Pakistan's urgent response to the pandemic, the embassy said. Made in America, the ventilators are valued at about USD 3 million and reflect the latest in cutting-edge medical design and technology, it said. They are compact, easily deployable, and will enable Pakistan to more effectively treat patients suffering from COVID-19.

The US-Pakistan health partnership to curb the spread of the coronavirus is helping to improve and expand laboratory testing, disease monitoring, case tracking, infection prevention and control and patient care, the embassy said.

The US embassy here in a statement on Friday said the Trump administration through the US Agency for International Development (USAID) “donated a shipment of 100 brand-new, state-of-the-art ventilators” to Pakistan.

The ventilators arrived in Karachi on July 2 and will be sent to hospitals across Pakistan.

“This donation delivers on President Donald Trump’s generous offer of these critically-needed supplies and supports Pakistan’s urgent response to the pandemic,” the embassy said. Made in America, the ventilators are valued at about $3 million and reflect the latest in cutting-edge medical design and technology, it said.

They are compact, easily deployable, and will enable Pakistan to more effectively treat patients suffering from Covid-19.

The US-Pakistan health partnership to curb the spread of the novel coronavirus is helping to improve and expand laboratory testing, disease monitoring, case tracking, infection prevention and control and patient care, the embassy said.

The US has contributed nearly $27 million in new funding so far to this vital partnership that is growing every day. “We are also thankful for Pakistan’s contribution of medical supplies to help fight coronavirus in the US,” the embassy said in the s...

Ambassador Paul Jones said, “The US stands with Pakistan in its fight against the coronavirus. These American-made ventilators will help Pakistani patients in the most acute need of medical care.” The announcement comes days after Pakistan said it had started producing locally designed ventilators.

Pakistan reported 78 more deaths from the coronavirus in the past 24 hours, raising virus-related fatalities to 4,551 while the total number of confirmed cases has increased to 221,896.

On Friday, the health authorities said 1,13,623 persons have recovered from the coronavirus, surpassing the number of active Covid-19 infections in the country for the first time.
